Dedication

We, the Class of 1959, are proud and happy to dedicate our Yearbook to Mrs. Margaret McCarthy. Her years of service to us, both in the grades and in high school, in the classroom and outside, have endeared her to us. She has enriched our lives with her wise teaching and sound advice, and we wish her many more years of success and happiness.

We are deeply indebted to Mr. Leslie Linsenbarth for all the knowledge, humor, and advice he gave us; we profited greatly by just knowing him. Always with a kind word or witty remark, Mr. Linsenbarth was one of the best-liked teachers in our school. We like to think that we were "his class", and we shall always remember him as a great teacher and a true friend.

Appreciation

To Mr. James Hane, Vice-Principal and mathematics teacher, we wish to express our profound appreciation for all he has done for us. All too often the value of his service in these dual roles is overlooked. Mr. Hane is a very capable teacher and dependable friend, and we all want to say a very hearty "Thank you!"

Editorial

We, who are about to leave these hallowed halls to make our mark in the world, take a last, nostalgic look around and wish for a brief moment that it all didn't have to be ending so soon. Our personalities and everlasting friendships were formed here, never to be forgotten, only to be changed as we age with the passing years. Within the portals of P.C.S. we have known laughter and fun, we have seen despair and tragedy, we have gained knowledge and inspiration, and we have sensed beauty and solitude. Herein we shed the cloak of childhood, never again to be as completely without responsibility as we once were.

Our years in high school were, for the most part, happy ones. We did have our setbacks and disappointments, but we can credit them to being a part of growing up. Perhaps we didn't always live up to expectations, but that, too, can be blamed on inexperience. All in all, we have learned from our failures never to make them again, and, as the years pass, we shall have only memories by which to recall the irresponsibility of our youth.

The close associations with the teachers, possible only in small schools; the extra-curricular activities, which provided hours of fun and relaxation; the plays and band concerts, our important forms of entertainment; last minute cramming to sink or swim on tomorrow's exams, and our ignored complaints about this and that, will take their places in our memories, along with the precious adolescent friendships.

Thank you, P.C.S., for helping us to become the individuals we have become, with a true sense of moral honesty and character. Thank you for the precious years we have known and lost to another generation. Thank you for helping us to grow up.

In Memoriam

December 28, 1948

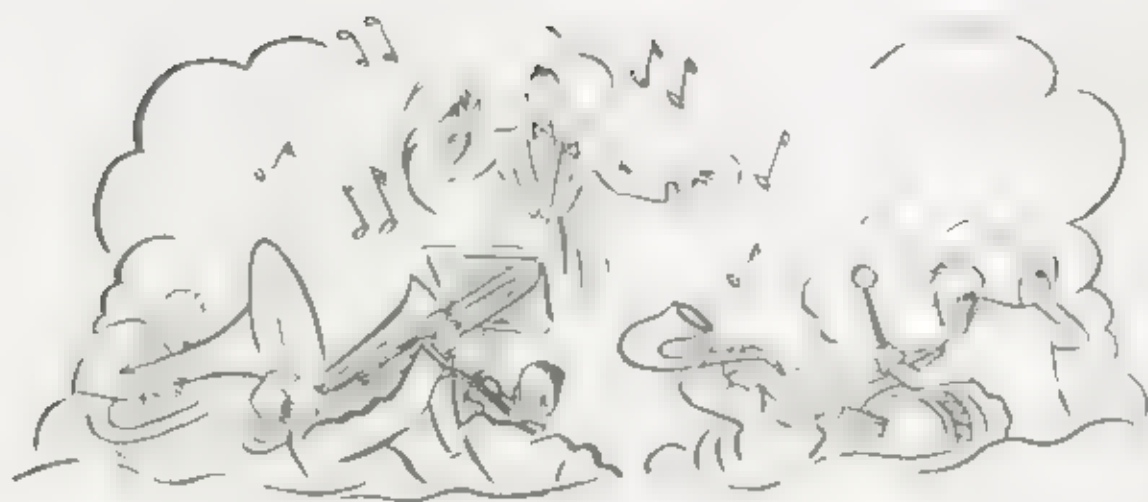

January 14, 1959

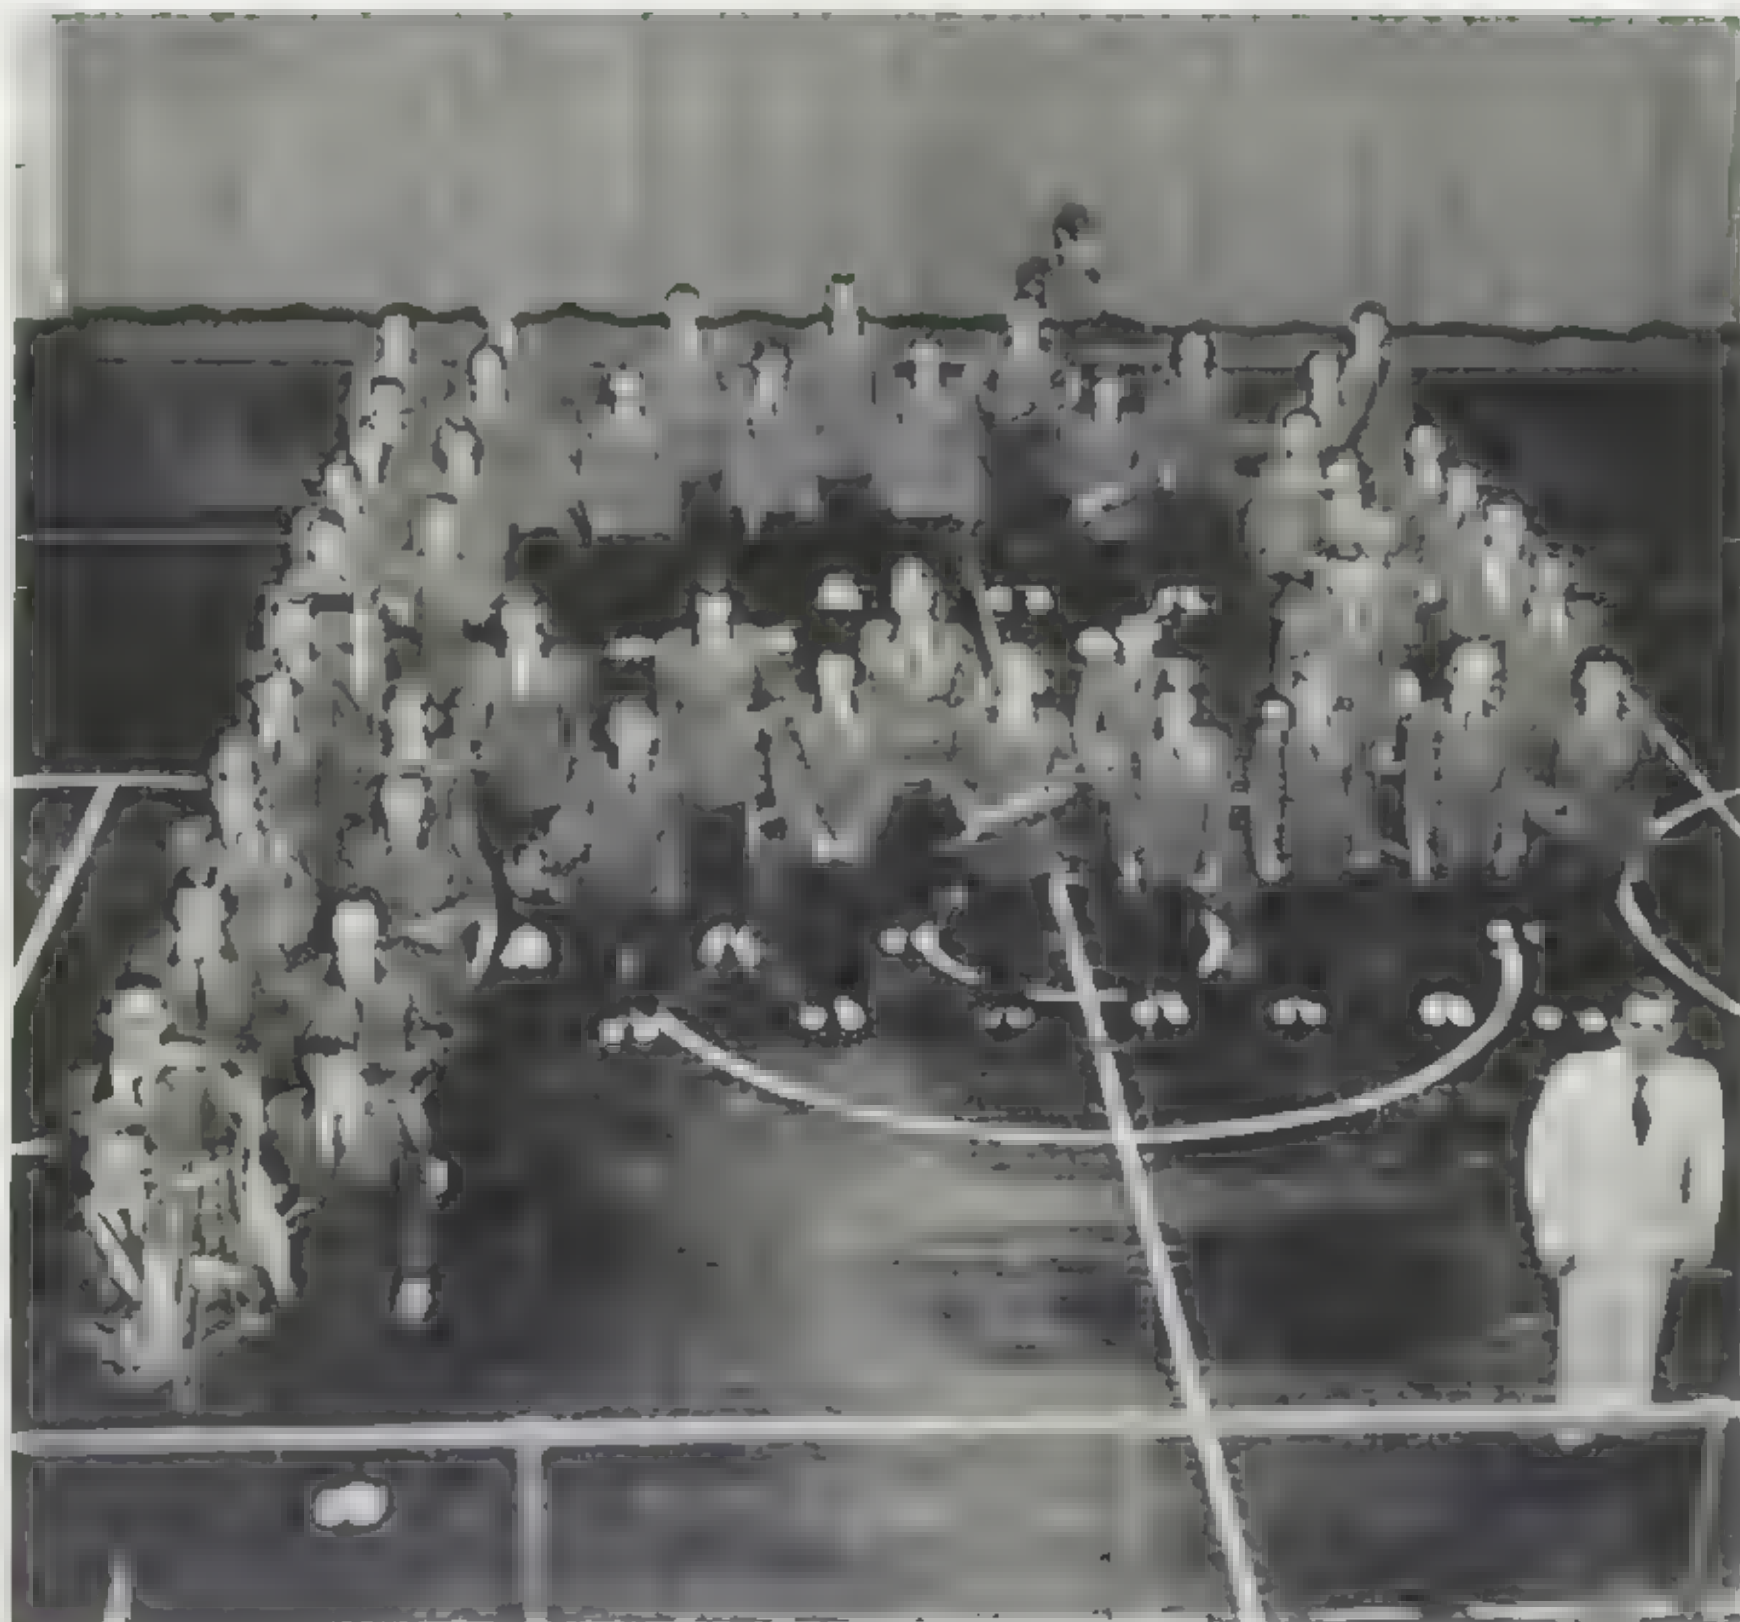

JOHN

He was a brilliant little boy who made the best of a most noticeable defect. We shall always remember his gentle and courageous attitude.

Music

Senior Band

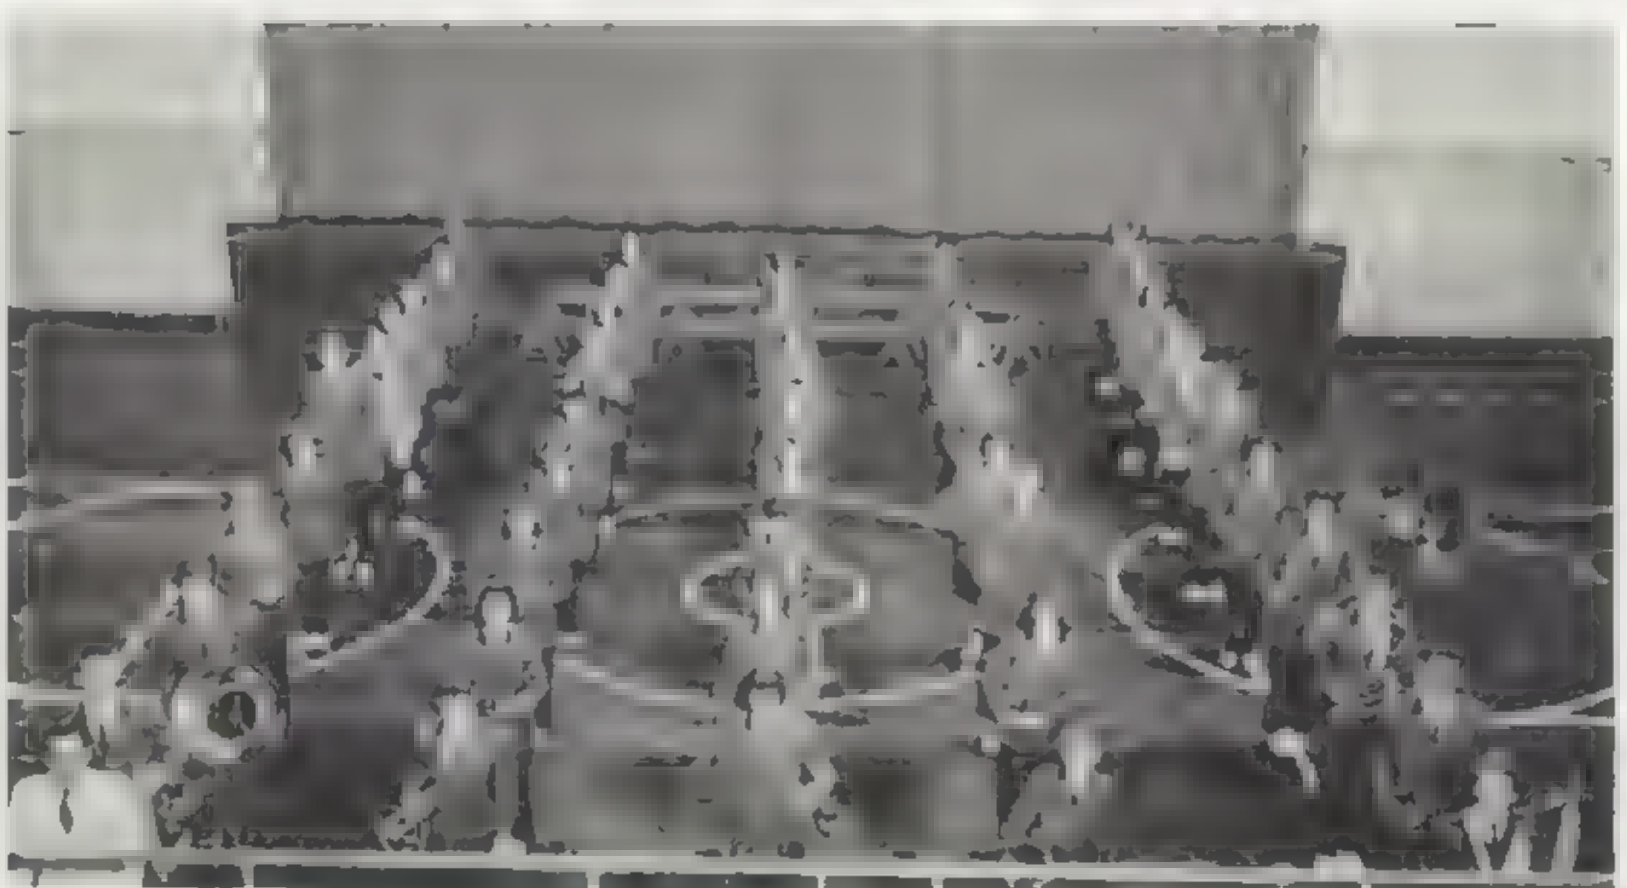

The Senior Class wishes to express its appreciation to the Senior Band for the many hours of pleasure it has given us throughout our school years. For those of us who were not in band, there were hours of delightful listening and relaxation from our routine school duties, and for us who were in band, there were hours of education, friendship and the pleasure that can be taken from a knowledge of music. We shall never forget our days of practice and competition, the tenseness of presenting a concert, the All-State weekends and our right to boast that ours was a "Grade Six" Band, recognized by the national music yearbook, First Chair.

Of all the organizations to which we belonged while in school, our most cherished memories will be those of our years in band. Forever, R. Bruce Jello.
